This got many of the emoji that one knows and may even love.

As many of the other player states the DLC is the easiest to complete of them all and I do understand their frustration with it.

I don't find it a problem though as it's pretty relaxing and it's what the main purpose of the 'game' is about afterall.

It offers you a break from the really tedious and complex ones that otherwise exists in the package.

. While I would understand why people would be disappointed with this one, personally I'm pretty fine with it. They're all actually pixel art, for one, and the mid-to-large size pictures here are what I'd want more of from this kind of game in general. The only annoying one is the last image, which is just a bit boring as you have huuuuge blocks of single colors all over the place, it's a bit flat and way too big for how little you actually do. Besides that though, it's... fine. I blew through this entire pack in a day of not wanting to finish the last Farm image and I enjoyed it well enough.. Not sure what people expect from an 'emoji pack' Of corse the pictures will be small and simple, as emoji's are, It's a very cheap dlc, still got 4-5 hours out of it, spent much less time on dlc costing more.
